Dedicated to all who have loved, lost and then loved again ... excellent, hellish and mind-boggling, in that order.

Don't remember a thing. Half a life, a worn out ring.
 I know just how an old shoe feels when it's cast aside.
 A ruin beyond repair. A wreck on a great despair.
 My reason my season my dignity crucified.

*Love breaks you and everything is change
 Love shakes you and everything is strange
 Love makes you and your reasons rearrange.
 Just free your heart and let your bridges burn.*

Shut the door. Bolt the windows tight. I'm alone. I will be alright.
 Then she smashed my windows in and let the light shine through.
 I'm blinded by a million stars. Give me time to hide my scars.
 This can't be love. I don't know what to do.
Love breaks you ...

*Keystone in my bridge. Linchpin in my wheel.
 Now everything is clear. Everything is real.
 Anchor for my soul. She is the blood and bones of me.*

Light the sun. Let the moon beam free. I can feel. I can see. I can be
 The world's not black. I'm not drowning in my own tears.
 My dying days are done. Smiling at the midday sun.
 And I have no more fear of the clock of years.
Love breaks you ...
